Following the horrific Marathon bombings, I heard excerpts from this beautiful album being played on WCRB, Boston's classical radio station. The music is reflective and beautiful... some pieces were already known to me but several are new. Being a chorale singer myself, I enjoyed listening to the wonderful sounds and harmonies.

December 29, 2012

The comment that our grandson made when I asked him about the present that we had sent him was "How did you know that this is what I wanted?" No had told us about this game but the minute that I saw it online, I knew that Alex would like it for several reasons: It is a LEGO product and it is a mind challenging game for bright children. (I rate this 4 1/2 stars!)

The indomitable human spirit

May 09, 2013

This is the story of one part of the '56 Hungarian Revolt that took place in Budapest. Michener per usual has done his research but in this book he is also one of the brave persons who helped bring refugees across the bridge from Hungary to safety in Austria.

This is a story of the human thirst and need for freedom and safety from tyranny. My particular interest in this Revolt goes back to my first year in College in 1958 when three of my classmates would sit in class with an English - Hungarian dictionary in their hands, translating the lecture. Each of them had been able to escape from their homeland to freedom in America. In this book I was able to learn more about their struggle and that of their countrymen.

Reviewed Drift: The Unmooring of American Military Power ... by Rachel Maddow

2 of 4 people found this review helpful

A must for all people

April 22, 2012

Politics is NOT the main topic here but the misuse of power in the name of "security". This book brings forth so many questions about the past 30+ years.

How many of us lived in a state of hightened awareness and fear during the "Cold War"? The only thing that was really cold was the lying and misleading of the people by those in power to build up the military - industrial complex that still is a major threat to true national security! How safe do we really feel when our social and civic structures are in states of such great disrepair while the greedy Halleberton- type businesses swallow our money and give little in return? Are our soldiers really safer when the democratic(with a small "d")structures are being torn down?

A BIG QUESTION is who is really paying for these wars and military build-ups?-- average citizens, our countries interstructure, etc., not even mentioning the lack of suport for education. What is the true cost of all of this? We have wandered so far from the vision of the Founding Fathers. Politics aside, it is time to save our country for ALL of us and for future generations.
