Non-traditional tank use.

July 09, 2014

We live in a retirement community & are restricted, somewhat, from planting shrubbery in the ground. We use bamboo to screen our bedroom window from the public walkway above. I had bamboo planted in large resin pots & found that the root balls, as the bamboo grew, split the resin pots. I bought this galvanized tank to plant two large 15' high bamboo plants. We are very pleased with the appearance of the tank & are looking forward too seeing how the tank holds up as the bamboo continues t grow.

The cost of the tank was substantially less than large traditional pottery pot.

Reviewed Gardening in Miniature: Create Your Own Tiny Living World ... by Janit Calvo

Create your landscape

March 03, 2014

The book is wonderful if you have an interest in creating a miniature landscape. The web site, for Janit Calvo, is informational with feedback on questions, planning tips and the latest gardening shows they will be showing at. This miniature gardening hobby is especially wonderful if you have limited space for your regular gardening efforts.

Pond Sealer

June 04, 2012

I have a small container water garden. The container/planter is made of a porous, light concrete material and once filled with water & fish started leaking water after about two weeks. The leak kept getting worse so I researched materials that could be applied inside the container without harming the fish & didn't require me to drain the container water garden. Bentonite Clay expands upward of 16 times its original fine powder form, or basically became like a mud which was applied, in the water, over the leak area.

The leak was stopped by the application of the Bentonite Clay. The clay is difficult to work with because it is so fine and it clouded the water until the particles settled to the bottom of the container. I'm looking for a Bentonite Clay product that is larger in size not the fine powder I purchased.

Great hat.....just too small

June 25, 2014

the style, material and style of the straw hat are as good as can be expected. I was very pleased but the hat, even with the built size adjustment, was too small. I have a San Francisco Hat Co. felt hat that I love and have worn for years.

Reviewed Trademark Home 82-4986 Aluminum Credit Card Wallet RFID Blocking Case, Pink ...

Handy and credit card protection

October 04, 2013

I have been using this aluminum credit card wallet for some months now and am very happy with it. I know that the active credit card readers are becoming more prevalent with thieves so the case is protection against credit card theft. The case also keeps most of my credit cards and membership cards very handy with easy access. I did find that the inserts, that hold the cards, cannot be stuffed with cards due to the inserts tearing. Overall I'm very pleased with the case and the peace of mind it offers me against credit card theft while out in large crowds.

Reviewed Indestructible Aluminum Wallet/Credit Card Case (Assorted 6 Pack) ...

Easy access & security to credit cards

September 28, 2013

I have struggled to keep my credit & debit cards together. This wallet not only offers, the "all together", flexibility but also offers security from the new active scan readers that have started becoming more prevalent to crooks that are looking for ways to steal your credit cards information. It is best to not overload each of the credit card slots which can cause the plastic slots to tear loose as well as cause to much pressure on the latch which will cause it to fail...I learned the hard way.
